About the Workshop

The move to demonetize Rs 500 and Rs 1,000 currency tenders by the Union Government of India on 8th November 2016 was a laudable and historic effort to clean up the decades long corruption and black money. As Indian citizens, we all should be proud of the fact that we elected a Government, which was capable of taking such brave decision for the long-term betterment of the country's economy.

Nevertheless, there's a high possibility that a certain percentage of people might interpret this decision negatively in view of the fact that short-lived challenges are to be seen, which might have a profound negative impact and dethrone ruling party in the coming elections; not everyone happens to be cognizant of the decision's long-term benefits. If unaccounted or black money isn't obliterated, it would make the rich richer and the poor poorer. According to SBI, "Banks received deposits worth Rs 53,000 crore since the government put out of circulation, high-value banknotes in a bid to drain illegal wealth. Nearly 14 lakh crore are held in Rs 500 and Rs 1000 notes now – nearly 86% of the total value of currencies of all denominations in circulation". Ultimately, Government will possess an adequate amount of money to invest in infrastructure, education, agriculture, and all other sectors to build India economically stronger.

Aims of the Workshop

To discuss the impact of demonetization on Indian economy in general, particularly on common men. It's also proposed to discuss to what extent it will address the corruption, black money and funding to the terrorists.

To discuss the consequences of this a issue, across the sections of the people like Academicians, Professionals, Government Officials and Monitoring Officials (RBI) are invited to express their views and opinions.
