Department of Political Science One Day National Workshop on

Politics of Dalits and Minorities: Perspectives and Challenges

(Co-sponsored by Telangana State Higher Education Council, Hyderabad, ICSSR, SRC, Hyderabad and under the Patronage of RUSA, Government of Telangana, Hyderabad)

Background of the National Workshop

Caste-based persecution in India lives today in a domain apparently unfriendly to its essence: a country expresses that has for quite some time been marked the "world's biggest parliamentary democracy" with a dynamic and defensive constitution. The arrangement of various constitutional laws intended to prohibit and rebuff any form of segregation based on caste, region etc., As an inclusive policy reservations and other constitutional guarantees have been given to guarantee for the upliftment of Dalits, erstwhile untouchables. Dr. B.R.Ambedkar's role in framing rights, guarantees for the empowerment of Dalits, which he entrained in Indian constitution. His intension was that the post independent rulers would take the cognizant of these policies and framework for the amelioration of Dalits. However post 1990's Dalits intended expectations from the state have been chartered in the name of LPG. Dalits do not find enough space in the so called welfare state. Their socio-economic conditions have been further deteriorated pursuing them to confine to traditional occupations. The civil society targeted them by inflecting various forms of violations and violence. Their cultural domain is also at peril. Despite Dalit intellectuals and activists articulation of these agonies of Dalits, the state headed by the dominant caste/classes are unable to resolve Dalit's basic demands.

Minorities in general and Muslims in particular as a major stakeholder of the country constitute around 15 percent of the country and as well as in Telangana are in similar fashion as discriminated as Dalits in the country. They have become neo-untouchables in the democratic and political process in these days. Growing majoritarianism, hatred and discrimination leads the Muslim community in feeling of insecurity and vulnerability. Large number of violence instances such as lynching in the name of cow, cultural issues like talaq and politicizing social policies are the other examples of the social unrest in the country. When community needs the development through inclusive policies, the systematic isolation through hatred and discrimination is keeping them away from nation-building. The law making bodies and policy makers of both centre and states were unsuccessful to give their voices for the enough policy measures to protect their identity and security. It's a high time to spread the message of peace and harmony among the various communities of India. There is a need to highlight relations between Dalits and Muslims to become a greater socio - political community for the achievement of common goals in the fields of socio-political endeavours.

Objectives of the Workshop:

The objectives of this workshop are to;

- a) Understand the theoretical perspectives of socio-economic issues of Dalits and Minorities in contemporary political debates;
- b) Examine the making and unmaking of leadership in terms of political representation, and political participation of Dalit-Muslim groups;
- c) Assess the linkages between leadership and governance as widely believed that low levels of political empowerment results in inadequacies in outlays and policy outcomes for these classes;
- d) Understand the Social discrimination and policy perspectives and challenges of Dalits and Minorities;
- e) Examine the scientific measures of challenges of ideologies which counter Dalits and Minorities;
- f) Dalit-Muslim Pressure groups and their role;
- g) Analyze the role of pressure groups and media in promoting the cause the Dalits and Muslims.
